

“Schooner in port.
Whalers shot whale at the buoy.
The whale charged on buoy several times,
towed the boat several times around buoy,
Charged on boat, breaking the boat and nearly capsized it,
but was captured.”

January 14, 1898, Emily Fish, keeper

“Five ladies and a boy were cut off by high tide on the Point.
Two of the party called for aid.
I sent a stout plank, a rope and the laborer to get them off safely at sunset;
otherwise they would have had to remain until midnight for the low tide.”

July 31, 1899, Emily Fish, keeper